

Book Club Questions:

1. Do you think Jerramy's dream to become a princess is a result of nature or nurture? How much of her character is simply reverse-rebellion?
2. What does the book teach you about the power of persistence and visualization?
3. Is Jerramy's story one of fate and destiny, or did she manifest it herself?
4. If you grew up with parents like Jerramy's, would you be ecstatic or mortified? Why is that?
5. Where do you think Jerramy would be today if she had followed her head instead of heart?
6. After reading Jerramy's story, do you think you believe in the concept of past lives?
7. Why do you think so many little girls identify so strongly with the princess archetype? What explains the roaring success of the Princess Diaries' series and movies like Enchanted?
8. America was founded specifically to escape the British monarchy. Yet why are so many Americans still so fascinated by it?
9. Do you think Kate Middleton will make a good princess?
10. Where would you be today if you had pursued your childhood dream with the same tenacity as Jerramy?
